Ballfield lighting bid awarded

During a short meeting, the City Council directed staff to place a sign which would protest the loss of sales tax and other monies by the city to the state.

The large sign would be tailored after the one the city of Santee installed several months ago, and would be placed at the corner of North Avenue and Buena Vista on the Home Depot project area, according to City Manager Jack Shelver.

In other business, council awarded a contract to install lighting at Lemon Grove Middle School softball fields.

The $55,341 bid was awarded to J.L. Wilson Electric of Sun City, Calif.

According to Shelver, Park Bond Act monies will fund the project. The lighting installation is scheduled for completion in late June.

In other business, council adopted a resolution designating the Palm Avenue Golden Avenue intersection as a three-way stop until the traffic light planned for that intersection is installed.

Also, council discussed the Lemon Grove School District's concerns over city-required undergrounding of utilities along Golden Avenue and School Lane, where two schools are located.

SDG&E and Pacific Bell Telephone Company are now preparing to start undergrounding utilities in a designated district along Lester and Golden Avenues and School Lane.

According to Shelver, the district estimates it will cost $32,000 to $37,000 to remove the existing utility pole and underground the overhead utilities. He suggested that the city could possibly advance the district redevelopment funds it will be paying the district over the next 4-14 years.

"The school district's position is that the city wants the undergrounding done, and the school district shouldn't have to finance it. That stance is politically unacceptable to us," said Shelver.

He suggested that one option might be to leave the entire block containing the two schools alone until a future date, at which time the district might be able to fund the project.

The school district's governing board will be voting on the undergrounding at its April 13 meeting.

"I think it should be sold hard to the district by us that they need to do this; they are a member of this community, and their property values will go up as a result of undergrounding," said Mayor Brian Cochran.

Rainfall cuts Helix Water District rate increase in half

Helix customers got more from the past months' rains than time out from watering their yards.

Lake Cuyamaca was a pond of 588 acre feet of water in late December. Storage in El Capitan Reservoir had dwindled as well. At that time a 15 percent rate increase loomed.

On March 25, as the Helix Water District Board of Directors continued to study ways to meet upcoming escalating cost of imported water, Cuyamaca had been bolstered to nearly 9,000 acre feet and backcountry runoff was adding about 1,600 acre feet a month to Helix's share of water in El Capitan.

That bonus water helped the board work through their rate-setting dilemma. Helix must ordinarily buy 90 percent of the water its quarter-million customers need from the San Diego County Water Authority at $324 an acre foot and rising.

The local water generated enough of a savings to allow the Board to cut back the earlier projected 15 percent increase to 8 percent. Where does that 8 percent increase go?

- 5.2 percent will be passed directly on to Metropolitan Water District (MWD) who contracts with the State Water Project for water from Northern California's Lake Oroville and which owns and operates the Colorado River Aqueduct. MWD will in turn use the $1,511,000 from Helix to help finance new storage facilities, treatment plants, and pipelines which will benefit all of us in Southern California.

- 1.7 percent or approximately $494,000 from Helix will go directly to the San Diego County Water Authority to help finance a nearly $1 billion effort to increase future water supplies and make them more reliable, another direct benefit to Helix customers.

- That leaves 1.1 percent of the 8 percent increase for Helix to conduct its ongoing programs such as tank maintenance, special projects such as earthquake reinforcement of tanks and other facilities.

Also, a little is put aside for future capital improvement programs, lessens spikes in future water rate increases, and to continue delivering high-quality water to its customers.

The rate increase will appear on bills mailed on or after July 1.

In the second half of the double header, they defeated El Capitan 4-1 thanks to Joe Eaton who pitched a complete game and had two hits, Justin Brennan, who hit a 2-run homer, and Sean Phillips who made two hits. On April 1 they overcame West Hills 9-4 in another team effort, with Justin Brennan pitching five innings.

The Associated Student Body is dedicating April 26 to 30 as Student Appreciation Week. Various activities will include passing out pencils on Monday, lollipops on Tuesday, and an assembly featuring Mount Miguel clubs on Wednesday. Longtime Lemon Grove resident, Helen Netzley, 80, died April 1 at the San Diego Hospice.

The wife of retired Lemon Grove School District Superintendent Byron Netzley, she was active both in the PTA and the Lemon Grove Congregational Church of Christ.

She was born in Holguin, Cuba to Quaker missionaries. She attended Whittier High School in Whittier, Calif., and was a classmate of Richard M. Nixon. She graduated from Whittier College in 1935 and taught elementary school in Calipatria in Imperial County. That year, she married Byron, then a teacher in Artesia, who served as Lemon Grove School District Superintendent from 1942 to 1972.

After moving to Lemon Grove in 1942, she taught for a year, before devoting her time to raising a family.

She later served as president of the local PTA council and District 9 PTA and was made an honorary life member in both the state and national PTAS.

Mrs. Netzley was honored with the Laurels Award for outstanding community service in East County. She was the only female committee member serving on the San Diego Chamber of Commerce Committee which brought the University of California to San Diego.

She is survived by her husband; by a son, Ronald L. Netzley, of Escondido; daughter Sherry Engberg, of San Diego; brother, Dr. Edward McClean of Whittier; sister, Beth George of Northridge, Calif.; and four grandchildren.

Services were held Tuesday at the Lemon Grove Congregational United Church of Christ. A private service was held at Greenwood Mausoleum.

Donations may be made to the Edgemoor Geriatric Hospital or the San Diego Hospice.

Easter services set at United Church of Christ

The family service of worship and celebration at 10:15 a.m. by which Lemon Grove United Church of Christ will mark Easter Sunday will combine both traditional and contemporary elements and special music.

Traditional decorations of palms, lilies and other flowers of the season in addition to a 6-foot floral cross on the church lawn will be augmented with larger-than-life butterflies and dragonflies suspended from the center of the sanctuary ceiling.

Organist and Music Director Irene Albrecht will be joined by Tumpeter Eddie Moschimo for a Prelude entitled, "Fantasie Brillante," and Bass-Baritone Dr. Russ Simbari will offer "The Trumpet Shall Sound" from Handel's Messiah.

At the Offertory, Soprano Donna Lindsey will sing "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," from the same Handel oratorio.

Drawing on traditional Scripture passages for the day, Co-Pastor Joan Pettis will preach a sermon, "Butterflies and Dragonflies."

Hymns for worship will include the traditional "Christ the Lord is Risen Today" and "Song of Celebration," composed 3 years ago by Co-Pastor Edward Pettis.

The life-affirming and community-affirming aspects of Easter will be underscored by a family breakfast, served by the youth of the church, prior to worship from 8 to 10 a.m. and following worship from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

B-Words Personal Comments of Councilman Bob Burns

Painting out

On Saturday and Sunday, April 24 and 25, there will be an opportunity for all to get into the act if they hate graffiti.

The Community Advisory Committee of the city of Lemon Grove is kicking off a series of "Clean-Up Days" that will endeavor to take back our community from the vandals and graffiti artists that are desecrating our town.

If you are tired of the ugly hieroglyphics that are painted upon almost every type of surface, or the destruction of property in Lemon Grove, then you will be welcomed in this effort.

Between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. on these days, a group of volunteers from the community will gather to paint out graffiti throughout the city. Business owners and interested residents will join together will all of the welcome workers to "clean up" our town. The event will be centered on Main Street between City Hall and Church Street. (3232 Main St.) and free food and refreshments will be provided. Also, there will be T-shirts and painters caps for all participants.

The work will last approximately three hours with all paint and materials furnished. The workers will be broken up into small groups, and it is warned that one should wear old clothes if actual painting or graffiti removal is to be performed by the worker. For further information, call the Graffiti Tip Hotline 685-2093.

The burgeoning graffiti problem is best handled by immediate removal. The HOTLINE should be called to report any such vandalism as soon as it is observed so that it can be removed promptly. To fully understand the motivation for this malicious fad, is to recognize that exposure is the key. It is a message that shouts "look at me" and "be aware." It says, often in code, that "this is the domain of the such and such gang or entity." It also displays various forms of artwork, if that is what it can be called.

It can be said to harken back to the "Kilroy was here" writings of WWII, or just be a reveling in a defiance of authority. Some of the graffiti is seen on precariously high and dangerous locations, which must boast of daring and athletic skill, and then there are those who just like to see their names in public places. These last are called "taggers" and probably similar to the carving of initials on a tree back when I was young. This gang lingo that is emblazoned all over any place that can be construed as a bulletin board for their messages, is destructive and costly to repair.

Soon the laws will be toughened up to levy some real punishment of the miscreants, and it is hoped that everyone in the community will become part of an unofficial policing force to stamp it out.

I would like to see some form of deputization that would give our citizens some authority to be of real help in this campaign, short of placing them in any danger by doing so. The "Honorary Constable" concept has been workable in other areas using volunteers with varying amounts of training. A cadre of "Tagger Baggers" just might work.

Call 685-2093 to join in the fun and be part of the solution to this problem, as a leader or a worker, and once again we may have a city of which to be proud.

If you have any questions or suggestions for Dr. Burns, send them to P.O. Box BB, Lemon Grove, Ca. 91946

Commentary

by Paul Treske

With this busy week including Easter, Passover and the start of the baseball season, I briefly toyed with writing about one or all of the above. But an item in Sunday's Union-Tribune changed all that and sent me into the realm of amusement instead.

The article in question reported the results of a series of meetings involving the people who publish various "yellow pages" which was held to determine what is "in" and what is "out" for the coming year.

Now I'm a sucker for this kind of list because, like everyone else, I like to believe that I'm a real "in" person. Of course, there are those iconoclasts among us who pride themselves in being "out" while everyone else is "in," but one way or another, those are the kind of lists a lot of us pay attention to.

And with the various competitive yellow pages trying very hard to gauge the public interest, these folks surely should really know what is or isn't trendy.

The "in" list was not surprising. Singles groups are "in," as is air quality, radon and lead testing and consultants of all types. Also "in" are elder care, faxing and, for some reason or other, fish!

But the list of what those intrepid yellow pages declared "out" for major headings in their books was a shock - leaving me with the feeling that I had finally arrived in some societal twilight zone. Oh, at first it was easy: rubber cement, fur farms and silverware cleaning. I mean who, in these modern '90s would really care about those things? Take fur farms, for example. If you are a movie buff and watch old films about Easterners coming to California in the '20s and '30s, you'll remember that they were all coming out here to start chinchilla farms. But today, a woman wearing a fur coat is most likely to be stoned for her political incorrectness by rabid animal protectionists.

I could do without such things as baking powder (everything is boxed and ready to bake now), or pepper mills, but suddenly the list got serious. There on the "out" list was sauerkraut! Sauerkraut for Pete's sake! Don't these people have any mercy! I know its a little old-fashioned and not exactly a "now" food but to say that all of us sauerkraut lovers are "out" is a serious blow. I mean who in his right mind settles for only mustard and relish on his hot dog or hamburger?

But it gets worse: Cuspidors are no longer on the yellow pages "in" list. OK, so you don't find them any more in modern-day hotel lobbies or bars - butfolks are collecting them as antiques these days and using them as planters or utensil holders. Is nothing sacred to these people? Is our colorful past simply to be taken away from us as if it means nothing?

The list goes on, crushingly: travelogues, pajamas, paper cups! Not much left is there? Apparently a flicker of life shone briefly in those corporate offices when someone suggested that an "in" category ought to be "live sex," but this was, for some reason or other, quickly rejected!

The ache in one's joints, the thinning of one's hair and increased forgetfulness certainly tell those of us who are 60-plus that it has become a world for the young. I guess the guys at yellow pages are telling us that too! Where are my old Frank Sinatra records when I need them?

Rabbits and eggs

When I was a young fellow about 4 years old (going on 40) back in Minnesota, Easter Sunday was just another Sunday. I had not learned the real meaning of Easter until I was married and attended the Lutheran Church with much persuasion on my wife's part.

My three beautiful daughters attending Sunday School regularly learned at an early age the true meaning of Easter. Even so, we celebrated like most everyone else, "rabbits and eggs." We would spend Saturday evening, Easter eve, coloring eggs. We tried to decorate the "fruit of the hen" as elaborate as possible: Multicolored, some with pictures or writing on them, and others just plainly colored.

The freshly decorated eggs, sometimes as many as four or five dozen, would be placed in a large basket lined with artificial grass. The full basket was placed on the table waiting for the girls to go nighty night. Then when all was quiet and still the Easter Bunny would come and hide the "precious gems" outside, with weather permitting, or inside our house.

We always had a prize for the one that found the most eggs, usually a big, chocolate rabbit to the winner and chocolate eggs to the runners up. Besides all the fun and games, we tried to instill in our precious daughters the true meaning of Easter.

The Bible doesn't tell much about the word Easter, but gives information of how the Lord was crucified and died on the cross at Calvary on Good Friday. Then, after three days and three nights in the tomb, he was resurrected to live again, forever.

Where the rabbits and chicken eggs got into the act, I can't find out. Easter is like Christmas; where did ol' Santa Claus come from? Anyway, it sells a lot of candy and eggs. Some parents even buy their kids live chicks and rabbits for the celebration, but I do believe that has been stopped due to the efforts of some humane people.

The world is changing so much, so fast that I guess us "Ol'-Timers" will have to lead, join them, or get out of the way."

Letter to the Editor

Building a SANDAG coalition

Dear Editor:

One of the duties I perform for the City of Lemon Grove, is serving on the San Diego Association of Governments, or SANDAG, as it is officially known. SANDAG was originally created by legislation introduced by then Assemblyman Pete Wilson. It has since become a model for other regional agencies. While it performs numerous important functions such as distribution of Transnet funds, operating as the region's Census clearing house, maintaining the Regional Justice Statistical database, and many more, SANDAG is unique among governmental entities because it operates on a truly regional level. Unlike the County, which has little jurisdiction within the incorporated Cities, SANDAG performs its functions in cooperation with all 18 Cities, the County, the Unified Port District, CALTRANS, and the Department of Defense.

In Dec. 1992, I was appointed to the Executive Board of SANDAG, and chosen as the Chairman of the Open Space Subcommittee. This Committee consists of five building industry representatives, and five members from the various environmental groups. As Chairman, I hope to build a coalition between the groups and help plan the development, and preservation of open space in the entire region through the year 2050. This is a vital task if we are to leave an environment for our children and grandchildren, that provides both housing and open space and parks.

In my capacity as a Board member I was asked to attend the National Association of Regional Councils national policy convention in Washington D.C. At our meetings we met with members of the new Clinton Administration. We heard from individuals such as Secretary of Transportation Pena.

One of the common themes of these meetings was to seek full funding of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act, or ISTEA for short. ISTEA is a replacement program for the old Highway funding acts from the Federal government. While the Act holds great promise, and provides needed funds for both the economy and job market, Congress has never fully appropriated the funds that had been allocated. It is hoped that President Clinton's pledge to move the economy along will include the already budgeted funds. San Diego county can benefit directly from these allocations since there are many projects already approved and just waiting for a funding source.

While in Washington, we were able to meet with the staffs of several Members of Congress, including the offices of Lynn Schenk, Bob Filner, and Dianne Feinstein. I tried to impress upon them the importance of the ISTEA funding to the local economy.

Often I will be asked if these types of conferences and meetings bring any results. I am personally very pleased with the regional approach that SANDAG takes. I have found that many interjurisdictional problems that seem intractable, can be solved when there is a personal working relationship with the other decision makers involved. It is important not to lose sight of the other person's perspective. Many times compromise can be reached when all players are at the table. SANDAG helps build these relationships, and provides a format for problem resolution. This is especially important when you are the "small guy" with very big neighbors.

Aerospace summer camps offered in Balboa Park for elementary students

This summer, students in grades 3 through 6 will be able to attend an exciting, hands-on summer day camp in Aviation or Space in Balboa Park to sharpen their budding interest in science.

Called "Liftoff to Learning" the program features two alternating weeklong sessions - one in aviation and one in space technology. The program runs six weeks, with the first session begins July 12. Each day's class is from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Sponsor of the camp is the International Aerospace Hall of Fame of the San Diego Aerospace Museum located in Balboa Park.

The camp is designed to help students understand the principles of flight and space travel and to explore both realms through hands-on, on-the-scene activity that is interesting and motivating.

The youngsters will study the feats of people in aerospace history and discover principles of aviation, lighter-than-air, rockets and space vehicles. The courses include field trips to an aerospace facility. Students will build and fly model airplanes, balloons and/or rockets, depending on course orientation.

The non-profit International Hall of Fame of the San Diego

Aerospace Museum offers the camp as part of its program to promote student interest in science, math and aerospace careers.

Tuition for the weeklong day-camp is $50. Parents wishing to drop their children at 8 a.m. for a pre-study period before the 9 a.m. class may do so for an additional $10. Limited scholarships are available to economically disadvantaged students. Interested students, parents, teachers and others wanting more information or application forms are asked to telephone the Aerospace Hall of Fame at 232-8322 or the Aerospace Museum at 234-8291.

Soroptimists score again

The Soroptimists of Lemon Grove drew another big crowd to their semi-annual rummage sale last Saturday. Their leaders say, "Build it and they will come," and so they do - again and again and again. They have probably resold the same "treasures" more times than they would like to count!

Science wizards visit Scripps

Several high school students from Mt. Miguel attended the March 13 "Young Scientist Lecture Program" on biomedical research at The Scripps Research Institute and Scripps Clinic. Chosen by their high schools for high achievement in science, the students joined 200 other county science students in learning about a broad range of current research topics including functional imaging of the human cortex, carcinogenesis, proteins at the atomic level, autoimmune disease, molecular genetics, and in-vitro fertilization. The program is designed to expose promising high school students to the challenges of scientific inquiry and medicine in the hope that it will cultivate a desire on their part to pursue a career in medical science or a related field. The students who attended the program now are eligible to apply for a select number of paid summer internships at The Scripps Research Institute and Scripps Clinic. Mt. Miguel students attending the program were: Jim Kring, Wendy Myers, their teacher - Dan Howard, Dickson Cho and Michael Pugh.

Bob Burns in an Easter state of mind

by Bob Burns

Since much of my rambling and choice of subject matter is not of universal interest, I know that there may not be such in this. I can only say that it had a profound effect upon me, on this Palm Sunday, and for those of us who are Christians, here it is.

The liturgy that was chosen, in our church, was a very dramatic, moving, and unusual depiction of one part of the passion of Christ. It involved a portly gentleman dressed in proper garb, who strode out in front of the congregation and proclaimed "I am Judas Iscariot." He loudly asked "why do you hate me." Receiving no answer, he then proceeded to tell us that we all had a little bit (or a lot) of Judas Iscariot in ourselves.

The gist of the follow-up of these shocking assertions, was that his only sin was that he put his own desires and hopes before those of our Lord. As I am sure is documented, Judas Iscariot chose to follow Jesus, and was invited by Him to become one of the 12 Apostles. He was also made the treasurer of the group and handled all of the money for them. He followed Christ for three years, suffering the abuse and hardships over that period of time that led up to the crucifixion. Judas proclaimed that he loved Jesus, and that that love was returned. He also stated that when Christ looked at him, it was with eyes that saw all, and knew all.

Judas admitted that he was very desirous of sharing in the glory that was foreseen by the prophets, and was eager for all to know about the greatness and the powers possessed by the Son of God. He urged Jesus to allow His miracles to be publicized and proclaimed widely across the known world. When Jesus declined, saying that it had to be only "in my Father's time," Judas took matters into his own hands. He volunteered to deliver Jesus up to the powers that be so they "could talk to Him," thereby explaining who He was. He assumed that such an exchange would make everyone aware, and the glory that was due, would occur. He said that the 30 pieces of silver were forced upon him, and that the money was not of consequence in doing what he did.

When the true intent was learned through the public outcry for the crucifixion, and when Christ refused to answer the charges against Him, Judas was devastated. He threw the silver coins into the Temple and went out and hanged himself. By placing his timetable for vicarious glory with his beloved Master, he superceded the plans of God, and believes himself to be forever damned. He again asks, "why do you hate me, when a little bit of me is in every one of you?"

Is this not a sobering truth that we all must confess to? Do we not rationalize the sacrifices and the good works on behalf of our less fortunate fellow human beings, that we do not do? Does not our profound love for the entity we call God, suffer a little or a lot of internecine logic that is motivated by selfishness? Can we, in this admission, be really so judgmental of Judas and others past and present?

For those whose beliefs do not subscribe to that of Christianity, this treatise is not intended to offend or demean the other avenues of worship of the one God. For those who have totally alien beliefs to the existence of God, I am sure that the rest of us are praying for you.

"Happy Easter."
